

THE DREAMBOOK

Introduction

“A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things...”

Matthew 12:35

This dreambook has been designed to show you practically how to bring forth your dreams and desires into the earth from within your heart.

For the Wright brothers it was flight that inspired the invention of the first airplane.

It was his dream of light that possessed Thomas Edison to invent the light bulb.

It was the first automobile that burned in Henry Fords heart. His dream is the reason we are travelling by car on our roads today.

Where there is no vision there is no creation. Think about this: before a building is built the developer has a mental picture of what he wants to build, he transfers his ideas over to an architect to translate onto paper. From there it goes to a graphic designer who creates an artists impression of the building, which is printed and placed on a billboard long before the foundation has even been layed.

All creation starts with a vision and dream in the unseen realm.

“Where there is no vision of your destiny people perish.”

Proverbs 29:18.

Where there is no clear picture of your destiny people perish. Vision is having a strong mental image or a clear picture of your destiny.

Hellen Keller was asked, “What would be worse than being born blind?” To which she replied, “to have sight with no vision.”

Vision is the ability to see, not with the physical eye but with the inner eye of faith.

For true visionaries, the imaginary world is more real to them than the physical three dimensional. In fact, a visionary’s vision is his reality. When Disney world had just opened and had one ride, Walt Disney was sitting on a bench on the grounds, seeming to just stare into space. One of his employees who maintained the gardens came past him and said, “How are you sir?”

Without looking at the man, he said, “Fine,” and kept on staring. So the man said, “Mr Disney, what are you doing?” “I’m looking at my mountain,” he answered. “I see the mountain right there.” Walt had told his architects about this mountain. As he talked, they wrote down what he said, and then they drew up the plans. Walt died before Space Mountain was ever built, so he never saw it constructed. When Space Mountain was dedicated, the governor and mayor were present, along with Walt’s widow. One of the young men stood up to introduce her, and said, “it’s a pity that Mr. Walt Disney is not here today to see this mountain, but we’re glad his wife is here.”
