

WORLDWIDE FIVE-YEAR CAMPAIGN

HILLCREST, SOUTH AFRICA – To reverse the decline of entrepreneurship in South Africa, the Joseph Business School (JBS) in this community 20 miles north of Durban is announcing its five-year campaign to assist 100,000 entrepreneurs worldwide to scale their business to $1 million.

The announcement will be made on Saturday, November 23, 2024, during the school's graduation ceremony, which will be held at 93 Inanda Rd, Cotswold Downs Golf & Country Estate, Hillcrest, 3650 beginning at 8:30 AM.

During the ceremony, 71 students from 14 African nations and one from the country of India, will be honored for completing the school's nine-month program.

"It is going to be an incredible event," said Pastor Clinton Palframan, managing director and dean of the Hillcrest campus. "I look forward to seeing them and their families. We have worked with entrepreneurs for nine months. They entered our program with existing businesses and many ideas for the marketplace. Now they will return to their nations, and their impact on their country will be great."

EMPOWERING ENTREPRENEURS GLOBALLY

In June, JBS, headquartered in Forest Park, IL, a suburb five miles west of Chicago, launched an ambitious initiative to help entrepreneurs worldwide.

Under the leadership of Dr. Deloris Thomas, an MBA graduate from Harvard School of Business, this unique Christian institution, the brainchild of Dr. Bill Winston, a renowned televangelist, launched this campaign to commemorate its 25th anniversary. Since its founding, more than 2,400 students from five continents have completed the school's entrepreneurship program.

During that span, it has helped students obtain more than $1.6 billion (US dollars) in government contracts, and more than 50 graduates became millionaires. The year marks the fifth graduation in South Africa.

said Dr. Winston believes the school can deliver on a grander scale, and his vision is to help entrepreneurs scale their businesses and boost economic development, promote jobs, and close wealth gaps.

"When you look at the average small businesses, the average"

revenue receipts are very low," Dr. Thomas said. "They are sole proprietorships, producing under $100,000, and cannot afford to hire people. They do not generate enough revenue to make a difference in their communities. With a million-dollar business, they can create jobs and opportunities for others,
