

HOW DO YOU SEE YOURSELF?

INTRODUCTION: YOUR SELF-DESCRIPTION

To understand the activity better and see how self-perception can differ from how others see us, scan the QR code below to watch the Dove Real Beauty Sketches video. Pay attention to how people describe themselves versus how others describe them. It's a powerful reminder of how hard we can be on ourselves!

In the video, people were asked to describe themselves to an artist. Most focused on what they didn't like—their "big jaw" or "dark circles." But when strangers described them, the sketches were brighter, happier, and more beautiful. This shows how hard we can be on ourselves.

Now, imagine you're in the same situation. You'll describe yourself as if you're looking in a mirror and talking to a composite artist. Be as honest as possible—don't hold back, but also notice what you focus on.

1

ACTIVITY

Objective: How you see yourself.

Instructions:

Pretend you are describing yourself to a composite artist, like in the Dove video. Imagine you're looking in a mirror as you describe yourself. Write exactly what you would tell the artist. Think about:

- Your facial features (e.g., "I have a round face with freckles").
- Your posture or expression (e.g., "I slouch, and I look serious").
- Anything else you notice about yourself.